(AP) — A Connecticut mom is offering $10,000 for the return of her pricey and valuable dresses — and she is naming a particular person who appears to be the thief. Linda Sweaney posted a video on Facebook this week from her home in Tolland asking for the return of her dresses, which were stolen a few days ago while she was away. She said she has security cameras pointing at the driveway entrance but that the person apparently sneaked into her back yard while she was gone. One of the stolen dresses is valued at $3,300. Sweaney is offering $1,000 for information leading to an arrest and $8,300 for the dresses, which are lined in cashmere and silk, according to an interview with WMUR-TV.Thanks for your help.
